DETAILED ACTION

Continued Examination Under 37 CFR 1.114

1. A request for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, including the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e), was filed in this application after final rejection. Since this application is eligible for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, and the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e) has been timely paid, the finality of the previous Office action has been withdrawn pursuant to 37 CFR 1.114. Applicant's submission filed on 8/5/04 has been entered.

Response to Amendment

2. Applicant's amendment/arguments with respect to claims 1-7 and 9-16 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

3. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless --

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

4. Claims 1-7 and 9-16 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Neukermans et al. (6,064,779).

Art Unit: 2625

Regarding claims 1 and 9 Neukermans discloses,

A portable computing device (which read on fig. 5, block 252, note col. 9 lines 29-31, examiner interprets PDA as portable computing device);

A scanner integrated with portable computing device (fig. 5, block 100 note col. 9 lines 18-19), scanner is integrated with PDA (portable computing device) as a single device with scanning capability (note fig. 5 and 5a, shows integrated scanner with PDA as a single device with scanning capability), the scanner configured to receive a scanning object that is caused to move through the scanner to image thereof (note col. 9 lines 20-29, the scanner receives a document (scanning object) that is caused to move through the scanner to image the data); and

Wherein the portable computing device includes an optical recognition engine that receives the image and produces text therefrom (note col. 9 lines 62-66, lines cite the function of the device activating optical recognition software from the PDA (computing device), inherent feature of OCR software receive image data and produces text).

As to claim 9: The scanner being a linear scanner (note col. 7 lines 57-59, examiner interprets a scanner scanning line by line as performing linear function).

Regarding claim 2 Neukermans discloses,

Wherein the portable computing device includes a display screen for displaying the texts from the optical recognition engine (note fig. 5, block 252, the figure shows PDA with a display screen displaying recognized texts).

Regarding claim 3 Neukermans discloses,

Wherein the optical recognition engine is a software module executing in the portable computing device (note col. 9 lines 20-29). Lines cite character recognition software included in the PDA.

Regarding claim 4 Neukermans discloses,

Wherein the scanner is operatively controllable through the portable computing device (note col. 5 lines 7 lines 35-36, lines cite electronic circuitry communicating and exchanging data with computing device, thus such interaction provides controllable function of computing device)

Regarding claim 5 Neukermans discloses discloses,

Wherein the image resolution of the scanner is re-configurable through the portable device (note col. 10 lines 10-15, speed of the scanner effects the resolution of the scanner, a computer program executed in the computing device determines initial speed and indicates when a document is moving too fast or slow).

Regarding claims 6 and 16 Neukermans discloses,

Wherein the scanner includes a mechanism to move the scanning object when the scanning object is received therein (note col. 7 lines 26-30, scanner includes transport for moving the document (scanning object) when document is detected).

Regarding claim 7 Neukermans discloses,

Wherein the scanner is a contact image sensor including a linear sensor (note col. 5 lines 56-60, photo detector in a one dimension array, examiner interprets as linear sensor), an array of optical lenses (fig. 2 blocks 112, 116, 122 and 123, show mirror plate, aspheric lens, mirror and photo detectors, examiner interprets as an array of optical lenses), and an illumination source (note fig. 2 block 106, light source)

Regarding claim 10 Neukermans discloses,

Wherein the linear scanner further includes an optical encoder to synchronize the image to be generated by the linear scanner (note col. 9 lines 24-29, scanner includes optical encoder).

Regarding claim 11 Neukermans discloses,

Wherein the portable computing device executes one or more application to parse the texts and fill in appropriate fields of one or more records (note col. 3 lines 55-60, PDA classifies and sorts the text examiner interprets parsing as a classifying procedure, filling in of appropriate field of one or more record is an inherent feature of a PDA).

Regarding claim 12 Neukermans discloses,

Wherein the portable computing device is able to transport one or more records to another device via a communication link (note col. 3 lines 63-65, having a modem a PDA would be able to transport scanned document images (records) to another computer via a network link).

Regarding claim 13 Neukermans discloses,

Wherein the communication link is either a wired link or wireless link (note col. 3 lines 63-65, it is inherent for a network link to either wired or wireless).

Regarding claim 14 Neukermans discloses,

Wherein the portable computing device includes telephonic function (note col. 3 lines 63-64, a modem provide telephonic functionality).

Regarding claim 15 Neukermans discloses,

Wherein the area of the scanning document also includes a graphic representation (note col. 7 lines 11-12 and 19-21, scanner scans the entire document to produce pixels to input to a computing device, examiner interprets pixel data to include graphic data).
